Dear ASA Families,

Over the weekend, one of our staff members' email accounts was compromised due to a phishing message. This resulted in numerous invitations being sent from her account to others. While we were able to contain most of the messages sent to ASA accounts, we were not able to contain messages sent to external contacts.

For those of you who received a Punchbowl invitation from Mrs. Renne, do not click on the invitation or try to open it. It is a phishing email. If you did try to open the invitation, change your email password immediately. If you share that same password with any other online accounts, you will also want to change your password with those accounts as well. Furthermore, you may want to check with a few of your email contacts to determine if any invitations have been sent from your email account. If so, please warn all your email contacts about the phishing invitation.

The flip side of this is also true, if you receive this email from others, please reach out to them and let them know their email has been compromised. Everyone who clicks on the invitation will also fall victim to the phishing attack, so it will continue to multiply until everyone knows not to open the invitation.

We apologize for this inconvenience. While our staff members participate in regular cybersecurity training, as we all know the scammers are getting more and more clever.

God Bless,
